SERVICE LEAGUE DOES MUCH IN FEW MONTHS REPORTED ON

Boys Stationed at Fort Oglethorpe Especial Objects of Attention-Washington Is Pleased.

League for Woman's Service been carrying on its work since its organization that a review of what has been accomplished in less than a year's time, as embodied in the official report to the state president, Mrs. Overton, at Nashville, will prove of astounding interest, and yet condensed reports and figures cannot include half that has really been done by this band of women.

The many convalescents that have been entertained in the homes, the relatives of departed soldiers who have also been cared for in the homes, schoolbooks and copy books that have been sent by individual members to the educational department at the army post, and a thousand and one other things that emanate from a mother's heart, as well as a patriotic spirit, cannot be entirely estimated.

In fact, the work of the Chatta-nooga league has attracted attention away from home. News came from Washington that the Chattanooga league was doing the best work re-ported by any one organization of its kind. The state president of Ohio was present at a recent meeting and declared that the local league was getting nearer the boys than they were in her state.

Through the efforts of a committee every regiment at the fort has been adopted by either a church or a club, and in this way the Christmas gifts good cheer were dispensed every camp and no soldier among the thousands there was overlooked. So many new lines of service are presenting themselves to the league that sometimes the members hardly have time for the meetings. Problems of Dependents.

One of the newest subjects the league has taken up is the problem of subjects the the dependents of the privates not receiving their stipulated $15 a month from the government: The correfact. Some pathetic cases of destitu-tion of these dependents have been reported to the league. Following is the report of the league's work as forwarded to the

A dietetles class was formed and jelly made for the hospital. Comfort bags were made and filled for all the officers and enlisted men of the Chattanooga units of the National guard. Acting in co-operation with the Na-tional Red Cross, the North Chatta-nooga Service circle has shipped 1,000 pieces of surgical dressings and hos-pital supplies to New York for use of the overseas forces. It has on hand a somewhat larger consignment almost ready for shipment for the same purpose. These dressings and supplies are standardized by the national surgical dressings committee.

Cynthia Hall and Her "Clothesless" Trunk Taken in Charge by Constable Lawson.

Cynthia, Cynthia, she's now thinking what a great world this would be if all the constables in creation were on the other side of the sea. But Cynthia Hall now opines from behind Hamilton county jail bars that all the constables are not across the sea; in fact, she learned that one of thom, Farry Lawson by name, is "constable matron" at the Terminal station, meeting and taking in charge all erring brothers and sisters who might come into the confines of Hamilton county with "clothesless" trunks and suiteases. In fact, Farry is an active disciple of "whiskyless" days and advocates that every day be of that character. Tuesday about this time Cynthia was speeding on a train from "somewhere in Kentucky" to "down in Mississippi," where she claims she was going to see her aged and sick father and take him a little "toddy." She got as far as Chattanooga and decided she would stop off for a day or so, not intending to prolong her stay, as it now looks as if she will have to do.

Constable Farry Lawson saw the visitor as soon as she got off the train and hardly before she got her feet on the ground. He also noticed that she carried two suitcases that might be "clothesless," so he investigated, and "clothesless," so he investigated, and as a result found both filled with whisky. The constable then went a step further and searched the wom-an's pocketbook and in this found a trunk check. He immediately place i the woman under arrest and took her before Squire C. R. Kerby, who held her to the grand jury. Constable Lawson then sent a negro to the station with the trunk check, and had night when the trunk arrived at the jail it was searched and its sole con-jail it was found to be whisky. The tents were found to be whisky. The woman stated that she was only on her way to Mississippi to see her father and take him a toddy. She said her father was very old, but if he had been a minor, Cynthia had enough mean liquor to have lasted him a lifetime. The whisky captured by Constable Lawson was turned over to the jail and will be used as evidence that Cynthia is not only not a good bootlegger, but is decidedly no judge of good liquor.
